

April 14, 19xx (date illegible)

Although catastrophically coldly, I spent the afternoon on the place is carried out by the movements of softness. For the third day after the church bell rang out, the third part destructive. Must earlier morning begin. Also, Waldhramm now owes me forty-seven deutschmarks.

Translators note: I've tried to retain Klick's characteristically abrasive grammar, used during this period to hyperbolically comment on her increasing anxiety over her lack of English skills. No known photographs of "Softness Performed" are extant; however an illustration was made for "Bewegungen im Dunkeln Magazin." Unprinted.
