

March, 1989

I was out in the garden today. The neighbor's dog has dug up my beets once again. That bitch. I cannot imagine another heated discussion with her solving anything. I give up. I raise the flag in surrender. I never cared much for beets anyway it is just the smell of the soil I love.